Re: The UN Belongs in Iraq!

Rep. Delahunt:

I am sure you have heard many arguments as to why the U.S. military should not be put in control of post-war Iraq. I will not attempt to list them all.

I would like to say that in my opinion, our credibility with the rest of the world will be further compromised if we go on with this supreme attitude, that only our ideas and input matter.

By allowing input and aid from other countries, we could help heal the rift between the U.S. and countries that had no supported the war initiative. It also could be a benefit to the U.S. to have other countries sharing the cost of the post-war rebuilding.

Please consider these points when giving your opinions on post-war Iraq.

Sincerely,
